Announce the Final Year of the Re:assemblages Programme

Rehearsing Horizontality: Reimagining Collaboration across African and Afro-Diasporic Art and Literary Archives

Guest Artists Space (G.A.S.) Foundation and the Yinka Shonibare Foundation (Y.S.F.) are pleased to announce the final year of Re:assemblages, a three-year programme examining how archives of art and literature from Africa and its global diaspora can be preserved, interpreted, shared, and activated in the present.

In 2026, Re:assemblages is shaped by Rehearsing Horizontality, a curatorial statement and invitation that asks: what does it mean to sustain a programme not through a single centre, but across a constellation of collaborating actors. To rehearse horizontality is to resist the pull of hierarchy in how we convene, commission, and collaborate. It is to consider: how do we convene with, rather than for, others? The proposition is put into practice through four convenings, new publishing, and network meetings hosted by the Foundations in collaboration with the AAL Lab Members and Affiliates Network.

Four Themes

In 2026, the programme cycle's four themes — Ecotones, Annotations, The Living Archive and The Short Century—find new articulations in new contexts:

- Ecotones — spaces where different ways of living, knowing, and relating to nature and culture meet and reshape one another; under Rehearsing Horizontality, Ecotones continues to locate these threshold spaces across ecological knowledge, cultural practice, and lived experience.
- The Living Archive — archives as dynamic, embodied, and iterative, shaped through encounter, memory work, and communal practice; in 2026 it hosts new dialogues between the archives of artists and communities.
- Annotations — the small, the absent, and the unfinished: marginalia, footnotes, and fragments within archives; in 2026 it continues to explore writing practices within and against the archive.
- The Short Century — how African liberation and independence movements shaped transnational art and publishing between 1945 and 1994; in 2026 it expands to trace overlooked genealogies and transnational connections.

Programme Highlights — 2026

AAL Lab Convenings in 2026

The AAL Lab Convening series, Contemporary Art and Archive Practices (CAAP), an international series of public convenings led by Guest Artists Space (G.A.S.) Foundation and Yinka Shonibare Foundation (Y.S.F.). Focused on the borders of contemporary art and archival practice, CAAP unfolds as part of the 2025–26 edition of Re:assemblages.

Kampala | 7 August 2026

Ecotonal Readings: Library, Landscape, and Sustainable Futures Convening

Partners: 32° East

Shaped by Ecotonal Readings explores the library as an ecological threshold: a meeting point where human, architectural, and environmental archives interact. Drawing on 'ecotones', a term that describes a transitional zone between distinct ecosystems, Ecotonal Readings illustrates how the 32° East Library and the organisation's sustainably built campus act as active 'edges' where knowledge, materials, and communities intersect. Dr. Anna Adima will lead a presentation on the history of sustainable art practices in the region based on research done in the 32° East library, after which artist and printmaker Kajebe Jacob Joshua will lead a workshop on sustainable print making practice.

London | 18 September 2026

Ilẹ̀ Mọ̀ Wa: The Land Knows Us Convening

Partners: Y.S.F. × UCL East, in partnership with The Bartlett School of Architecture (The BSA)

Opens with the workshop Ecotone as Meeting Ground: West African Healing and Dalit Tapestry, exploring the ecotone as a meeting ground between West African healing practices and Dalit temporal tapestry-making hosted by Jonn Gale and Abhaya Rajani. This is followed by an in-conversation between Dr. Janine François and Dr. Ama Josephine Budge Johnstone, moderated by Naima Hassan, framed around Black Sacred Ecologies. The convening is accompanied by a zine of the same title, featuring a conversation between Funmi Ogunshina and Naima Hassan, and brings together perspectives from four women residents of the G.A.S. Farm House, past and present, alongside the Farm's matriarch, Alhaja.

New York City | 24 September 2026

Planetary Afterimages: After The Short Century Convening

Partner: e-flux Screening Room

Takes the afterimage as its conceptual node, asking how the images, films, and archival traces of The Short Century continue to circulate and insist on being signified. The convening opens with drop-in session led by Yusuf Hassan (BlackMass Publishing) reflecting on the zine produced for the convening. The screening will open with contextual remarks situating the After Okwui series, the exhibition The Short Century, and John Akomfrah's Testament (1988), originally presented as part of The Short Century at MoMA PS1 in 2002, followed by a conversation with Yusuf Hassan and Keli Safia Maksud, chaired by Re:assemblages programme advisor Serubiri Moses.

Re:assemblages Reflections Convening | Commemorating a 3-Year Cyle

Following the 2025 Re:assemblages Symposium, the Re:assemblages Reflections Convening bringing together network members, fellows, contributors, and partners to reflect on three years of collective experimentation. The virtual convening launches the Archive Futures Repository hosted on G.A.S. Publish and marks the formal transition of Re:assemblages into the African Arts Libraries Lab (AAL Lab) & Affiliates Network.

G.A.S. Publish (gas.biblio-graph.org/publish) is an open-source, hybrid publishing ecosystem. Built with Biblio-Graph, Publish is a tool for making books in the browser, enabling collaborative editing, design and publishing, developed by experimental research and design studio Archival Consciousness.

The full schedule, contributors and tickets will be announced in October 2026.

New Publishing

Digital

Archive Futures Repository

A digital toolkit and publication series hosted on G.A.S. Publish (powered by Archival Consciousness).

Archive Futures Essays Series

Hosted on G.A.S. Publish the digital series commissions ten essays across two strands in 2026:

- Notes on Convenings — a reflection published after each convening; part document, part argument, sitting with the archives, ideas, and unresolved questions each convening presents.
- Artists as Libraries — pairs senior artists with early-career writers around themes the artist defines, responding to the relative absence of public archives on contemporary African and Afro-diasporic artistic practice.

Print

- Ilè Mo Wa: The Land Knows Us — print zine launch, 18 September 2026, accompanying the London convening. Concept, text and design: Funmi Ogunshina, Naima Hassan, Catherine Bardi, and Samantha Russell.
- Planetary Afterimages: After The Short Century — print zine launch, 24 September 2026, accompanying the NYC convening. Concept, text and design: BlackMassPublishing (Yusuf Hassan)
- Annotations in Four Acts — print publication launching November 2026, developed in parallel with Annotations, the first chapter of the Re:assemblages programme at the Guest Artists Space (G.A.S.) Foundation in 2024. The inaugural publication of the foundation, examines major pan-African cultural festivals, exploring their dual role as both historical events and sites of postcolonial pan-African exchange.

About the 2026 Planning Committee

Belinda Holden leads on programme, partnerships, fundraising, and governance for both Y.S.F. and G.A.S. In 2020, she launched Guest Projects Digital and, in 2022, established the G.A.S. residency programme in Lagos alongside Yinka Shonibare CBE RA.

Moni Aisida is the Executive Director of G.A.S. Foundation. With a background in fintech, health, and the arts, including roles at SMO Contemporary, Art X Lagos, and Affinity Gallery, she is known for advancing emerging art practices and institutions.

Naima Hassan's background lies in the development of archive collections, curatorial strategies and international cultural partnerships. Between 2022–24, she led the development of the Picton Archive housed at Guest Artists Space (G.A.S.) Foundation. She is the Curator and Project Lead for Re:assemblages and the African Arts Libraries Lab (AAL Lab) Network.

Catherine Bardi is the Communications and Events Coordinator at G.A.S. Foundation. She previously worked as Communications Manager at Wunika Mukan Gallery and as a contributing writer at Art Network Africa. She holds a B.A. in Theatre Arts from the University of Benin and is one of the selected writers contributing new critical texts to iniva's The Message Is in the Pattern, the third iteration of its Post-National Digital Pavilion, developed with the British Council for the 61st Venice Biennale.

Samantha Russell is a London-based researcher, artist, and educator whose work explores African and Caribbean history, material culture, and the legacies of decolonisation. She holds an MA in Global Black Studies, Decolonisation and Social Justice (Distinction) from the University of West London. Samantha has experience in archival research, project coordination, and public engagement across institutions, including Yinka Shonibare Studio, The Design Museum, and The Barbican.

About the Advisory Committee

Dr. Bea Gassmann de Sousa is a British Academy Postdoctoral Fellow at the UCL School of European Languages, Society and Culture in London. She is a collaborative advisor for Tate Modern's exhibition Nigerian Modernism, and the academic editor/advisor for a digital East African art history platform. Her specialist focus is on the importance of continental African archives and scholarship contributions to global modernity. She is an active member of the Black Europe research group at SELCS and a founder-member of the Multiple Artistic Mobilities scholarly network of Germanophone and continental African universities (2020–).

Natasha Ginwala is a curator, researcher, and writer. She is co-curator of Sharjah Biennial 16 (2023–25) and Artistic Director of Colomboscope, Sri Lanka. Former roles include Associate Curator at Large at Gropius Bau, Berlin, and Artistic Director of the 13th Gwangju Biennale. Her curatorial practice spans major international platforms including documenta 14, Berlin Biennale, and Venice Biennale.

Dr. Rangoato Hlasane is an artist and researcher whose work intersects cultural practice and socio-spatial justice. He is co-founder of Keleketla! Library in Johannesburg and has presented work at documenta fifteen, Haus der Kulturen der Welt, and the Berlin Biennale. He holds a PhD in African Literature and currently serves as Assistant Professor at the Academy of Media Arts, Cologne.

Serubiri Moses is a Ugandan curator, editor, and writer based in New York. His work explores African art theory and exhibition histories, with a focus on collective teaching and listening as epistemic practice. He teaches part-time at Hunter College (CUNY) and is visiting faculty at Bard College's Centre for Curatorial Studies. He has held academic positions at institutions including NYU, the New Centre for Research and Practice, and Dark Study, and has lectured internationally. His curatorial projects include exhibitions at MoMA PS1 (2021), the Hessel Museum (2019), and KW Institute, Berlin (2018). A former research fellow at the University of Bayreuth, he holds an MA from Bard College and is an alumnus of the Àsikò International Art Programme. He is a contributing editor at e-flux journal and his forthcoming book, Judith Namala: A Novella, will be published by CARA.

Dr. Oluwatoyin Zainab Sogbesan is an architect, cultural historian, and heritage specialist. She is the founder of Àsà Heritage Africa Foundation and has served as a curator, consultant, and lecturer across Nigeria, the US, and Europe. Her work focuses on heritage preservation, inclusive interpretation of culture, and intangible heritage in African contexts. She holds a PhD from City University London and numerous international fellowships.
